BY AUGUSTUS SNODGRASS. STAR of the Soul! Upon the heart thou shin'st In thy bright rising, which leaps up to thee Winged by the breath of Joy! As thou declin'st,

Like the sad Sabian on his bended knee, Watching the bright Sun setting, we do gaze Upon thee through our tears. Thou floatest by, Now glittering wildly with a dazzling blaze, Then shrinking back within the heart's lone sky! Faith, Love, Ambition, bathing in thy light, Live only by thy smiles! Thou hov'rest o'er The death-bed ;-and with radiance ever bright Peoplest the world of shades! To reach the shore Thou pointest to, we leap in Death's cold wave, There thou desert'st us, -smiling o'er our grave!

And thou hast led me en, a wanderer In soul, as did of old the heaven-sent Star Chaldea's wise men; but I, doomed to err, Roam from the path, and blindly tread afar! My heart leaped up to thee, and heard thy voice,

Sweet as the fabulous starry tones of old : And, even while thou bad'st me to rejoice, Clouds, like death-palls, were o'er my vision rolled! Pale Disappointment, shudd'ring at thy song, Croaks with a Harpy's voice !- and in the grave Of thy false promises she bindeth strong

The fond, sweet wish which makes my heart a slave! But yet thou warblest !- not, perhaps, in vain,-And rising from the earth, I smile again! Norwich, N. Y.

Bocuments accompanying the Report of the Secretary of the Treasury. Effects of the New Tariff on the Revenue and the Prices of Foreign Goods. COLLECTOR'S OFFICE, NEW-YORK, November 23, 1842.

SIR: In answer to your letter of the 23d inst., I have the honor to state my opinion, that for some time preceding the passage of the New Tariff, there was a redundant supply of merchandise in the United States, and that this over-stock still continues; and further to state my full concurzence in the belief which you express, that prices are not determined by rates of duty imposed upon merchandise, but by the proportion which the supply bears to the demand.

The actual quantity of any description of merchandise which may be in the market, is a question of difficult solution; because the holders are unwilling that the dealers should know the extent of their respective stocks; but the inquiry whether the stock on hand exceeds the demand, may be answered by a comparison between the cost of articles and the prices at which they are sold, or between the prices obtained at different periods. The first test is not of easy application, because it involves the necessity of resorting to the importer for information as to the cost, which information it is his interest, in a great majority of cases, to withhold. It is true, that if a specimen of the article sold is brought to me, with a memorandum of the names of the importers, and of the ship in which it was imported, I could ascertain the cost, provided all the articles of the same name in that particular invoice, were of uniform quality; but such an investigation, if made to any extent, would be exceedingly embarrassing and very laborious. In search, then, of facts to prove by the declining prices of merchandise that there is a surplus stock of merchandise beyond the wants or abilities of the consumers, I must refer to the quotations of the prices-current, or to actual sales, as communicated to me by individuals upon whose testimony I can rely. On a former occasion I expressed my doubts whether much reliance could be placed upon printed reports of the state of the market; if there were no other objections, this alone would suffice, that their quotations take so wide a range as to express no precise information; for instance, these inquiries: Clean Rus. Hemp is quoted. July 6, 1842, at $220 per ton.

Nov. 23, 110 to $212 50

Bar Iron, Russia, P. S. I... July 6, 101 50 to 105 00

Refined Saltpetre...... July 6, 75 to 100 00 Brown Russian Sheetings. July 6, Nov. 23 7 00 to 750

one now before me quotes Madeira wine at 45 to $1 50 per gallon; but I find some facts recorded in recent publications which will throw light upon

In all these cases the duties were considerably higher in November than in July. There are in prices-current a few articles, the prices of which in November were higher than in July or in August; but I am confident that a thorough examination into the state of the market would sustain my epinion, that there is but one article which has risen in price to an extent equal to the increase of duty; the exception is, the highest grades of brandy-the stock of which does not exceed six months supply, even under the diminished demand resulting from the progress of the Temperance cause. I have procured some specimens of Dry Goods. to the relative prices of which, at different periods, I beg leave to refer:

No. 4. do. do.....September........ No. 5. Amer. Flan'l, Sep, '41, 37½ c; Sep, '42, 30 c, Nov. No. 6. "Satinet, "55" "9" "No. 7. "Calico, "9" "" "" "" ""

Specimens of articles which have declined in price since the New Tariff went into operation cau be multiplied to any desired extent, and I venture to assure you that if proof of an average fall of ten per cent. in the selling price of Dry Goods since September 1st were required, I can furnish it in abundance, and it is equally certain that the prices of other Goods, generally, are now lower than they

The time which has elapsed since the passage of the new act, is too short to admit of proof that the process of accommodating foreign prices to the new state of things existing here, has already begun to develop itself; but I have no reason to doubt that this result, explained in my letter of the 25th instant, will inevitably be found; and that in no circumstances will the consumer have to pay the whole or the larger part of the increase of duties provided by the new law.

I am, Sir, very respectfully, your obedient servant, EDWARD CURTIS, Collector. Hon. WALTER FORWARD, Secretary of the Treasury, Washington D. C.

> The Warehousing System. [Circular.]

TREASURY DEFARTMENT. November 24, 1842.

Sin: As it is contemplated by the Department te bring before Congress at its next session the subject of a general Warehouse System, with a view to the better accommodation of the import business of the United States, it is desirable to obtain information upon the following points, among others, and to receive such suggestions in relation to the policy and practicability of the system as your experience may enable you to fur-

First. Is it likely that safe and commodious warehouses can se procured without the expenditure of money by the Government in their erection?

Second. Supposing that commodious warehouses can be procured on llease by the Government, would the expense be reimbursed by the amount of storage received; and if not, is it likely that the deficiency in the smaller ports would be made up by the excess of receipts for storage in the larger ports; in other words, assuming that the privilege of warehousing shall be universal, will it support itself, without burdening the reve-

Third. What number of additional officers, if any, would be necessary for conducting a Warehouse System with entire safety to the Government, affording at the same time reasonable facilities to importers? In replying to this question, you are desired to advert to the peculiar duties of officers attached to this service.

Fourth. What would be the effect of this sys-ports? Would it change or unsettle the relative advantages enjoined by them under the existing system?

Fifth. Is it expedient to limit the period of deposite, say to one year, the time within which exportation for drawback was allowed under our early laws, or should the period be indefinite? Sixth. What will be the effect of the system upon the revenue accruing at the port of the year next following its adoption? Seventh. You are requested to communicate your views of the system generally, in connexion with that of cash duties: your reasons, if any, that may favor its adoption, and your opinion as to the disadvantages that may attend it.

Your answer is requested at the earliest day eracticable. I am, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,
W. FORWARD, Secretary of the Treasury.

Custom-House, New-York, November 28, 1842.} SIR: Your circular dated the 24th instant, upon the subject of the ware-housing system, came to hand this morning, and I hasten to reply to it.

To the first question propounded, I answer: At this port, there would be no present difficulty in procuring any number of good and proper warehouses, and probably there would not be any for a long time to come.

Second. The rents would be paid with the storage received, if due caution was observed in hiring stores. With, perhaps, occasional exceptions, in the longrun the concern would sustain itself, but nothing could be counted upon to make deficiencies at other ports; the merchants would object to being taxed beyond the amount of the rents paid, so that each port would have to bear its own burdens in this matter.

Third. The additional number of officers required would depend very much upon the provisions of the bill to be enacted; if the system is to be restricted to a moderate number of heavy articles, no great increase of force would be necessary; but, if it is to embrace all sorts of things, and if fabrics to any extent are deposited, then the number of clerks and officers must be greatly increased; at least I should presume so, especially if the merchant is to be allowed to enter single packages; for, in that event, whether they are inspected and valued at the store in which they are leposited, or are transferred to the appraiser's store for that purpose, there must be clerks to enter them in books, inward and outward, from the stores, and officers to attend to them at both places. The number of packages examined under such a system, would be far greater than under the present, of course involving expense in some shape. Fourth. The effect of this system upon trade at the larger ports, would be, upon the whole, unfavorable, especially in regard to manufactured goods-more particularly dry goods. The general consequence of its adoption would be, to cause shipments of the surplus stocks of other countries, whenever they had accumulated to any extent, and the merchant not having to pay the duty, could extend his advances upon the goods, and could compass much larger quantities than under the present system.

The accumulation at this port, for instance would, under such circumstances, be large and rapid, in proportion to the depression in other countries, and, as a never-failing consequence, the goods would be forced at times when every thing was at the lowest point of depression here. I am of the opinion that paroxysms in the market would be more frequent and more violent than under the present system-decidedly so. There would also be a constant deposite of staple goods, such as low cottons, &c., for the supply of the Mexican and South American States, in the hands of commission merchants under advances, and all experience induces the presumption that they would supply that demand at whatever sacrifice might be necessary. The double object of realizing their advances and securing a commission, would tend very strongly to that result.

If any benefit is to be derived from the adoption of this system, it will enure entirely and exclusively to the larger ports, as it is consigned merchan dise, with few exceptions, that would be deposited, and four-fifths of it consigned on foreign account, which comes only to the principal ports.

Fifth. To prevent some of the evils which are manifestly incident to the system, the deposite should be limited to one year; under no circumstances should it be indefinite.

Sixth. To this question there can be but one answer. It would lessen the receipts into the Treasury the first year, beyond doubt, perhaps materially. Seventh. The operation of the system, if made general, would be, on the whole, injurious, in a national point of view, and its benefits would accrue almost exclusively to persons of large capital. The men of moderate means, importing on their own account, can not afford to lie out of the cost of the goods; they must in most cases enter and pay the duty on arrival, and they will constantly have to contend against the evils which an overstock of goods always causes, and which will operate with the greatest severity when they can least afford to be oppressed by it. One of the prominent evils of trade for years past has been a constant plethora of goods; and anything which mitigates that, as cash duties certainly to some extent will, will benefit all traders on their own account, as well as the country at large. There need not be the slightest apprehension or fear that cash duties will limit the imports below the net proceeds of the exports, or or at all, as long as the goods will pay a profit. The wholesale restraint of the present system for a year or two seems absolutely necessary, if any hope of recuperation is to be indulged, and it would, I have no doubt, be favorable to an increase of the aggregate revenue for a period of three or four years to come.

That any general advantages are to be derived from the adoption of this system at the present time, to say the least, admits of very great doubt; and if made general, it will, I think, result in pretty universal disappointment. If confined, as it is, in fact, in England, to a few heavy articles, mainly raw produce, it will perhaps be beneficial. I think it would be, and it will not involve much additional] expense; or, if confined to articles which pay a high specific duty, such as wines, liquors, sugars, iron, &c. &c., its adoption would perhaps lead to no bad consequences.

All inferences drawn from the working of the system in England would be entirely inapplicable to a general system here; the goods deposited in the first case, being confined mostly to a dozen or twenty articles subject to duties of from 50 to 500 per cent., averaging perhaps 150 per cent., and, n the second, numbering every species of produce and manufacture that can be named, subject, on the average, to perhaps 33% per cent. duty; the bardship of advancing the duty in the first case being a very different affair from what it would be in the second.

For the foregoing reasons I should advise, it adopted at all, the restricting the system for the present to a few prominent articles, believing that the making it general at this time would be an exceedingly hazardous experiment. I am aware that these opinions are, in many quarters, and by some of my friends, considered altogether heterodox; but as they are the convictions of my best judgement, I cannot withhold the expression of

I remain, with great respect, your okedient servant,
THOMAS LORD.
Hon. W. FORWARS, Secretary of the Treasury, Wash.

CHARLESTON, December 7, 1842. SIR: In reply to your letter of the 24th ultimo, I have no hesitation in expressing the opinion that the Warehouse System is desirable in connexion with cash duties, and that it would be an accommodation to the import business of the United States. First. In this part there is no difficulty in renting safe and commodious warehouses without any expenditure for building. Second. I do not believe that the storage would pay the rents if the system is adopted indiscriminately, but that it would if confined to the princitem upon the trade of the larger and smaller | pal ports of the country.

Third. In Charleston one additional officer would be necessary. There would be additional dryyage and porterage. Fourth. The tendency of the system would be to concentrate business, and to favor the large ports; but it is not easy to anticipate the operation of the system in this respect. Fifth. I think one year sufficient, and that a longer time would be injudicious. Sixth. It would make but little difference in this port at present; under an improved state of trade it would be different. For the next year, if now adopted, the change would be unimportant, and the revenue but little affected.

Seventh. Of the expediency of cash duties I have no doubt. Whatever causes may have rendered a credit for duties desirable or expedient formerly, they no longer exist. The regular American merchant is able, and for the most part willing, to pay his duties in cash. The cash system avoids the risk of loss from non-payment of duty bonds; it is more simple; it prevents the foreigner from trading on the credit of the American Government; it stops heavy imports of goods on foreign accounts, and debars the foreign merchant or manufacturer from thus injuring the regular home merchant and the country generally.

I have hitherto, in the absence of authority to procure warehouses, where storage became necessary, permitted the merchant to furnish his own store, placing the key in the keeping of the Collector. Perhaps some discretionary power of this sort in the smaller ports might be better than renting stores, which might involve a heavy expendi-

COLTON'S MEDICATED CANDY.—

Please allow me, through the columns of your paper, to call the attention of those whe are suffering from coughs, colds, &c. to a preparation for the relief of difficulties of this kind by C. F. Colton of this city.

I have made frequent use of Colton's Medicated Cough Candy, and in all cases to my entire satisfaction. Also, I have been personally acquainted in cases of others who have used it with like results.

It is evidently an agreeable and efficacious medicine, and may be taken freely without prejudicial effects upon the system. In this last respect particularly it is decidedly superior to the generality of articles of the kind now offered in the market as safe and karmless medicine, and is thereby, in connection with its medicinal merits, justly entitled to the first and highest confidence of those who may wish the relief which it claims to afford.

lief which it claims to afford.

It is confidently believed one trial of this Candy can hardly fail to secure for it all future patronage.

It is for sale at the store of C. F. Colton, Druggist, No. 201 Main street, and by other Druggists in the city.
